The Macquarie University Audiology Clinic provides best-practice clinical services in Audiology. Services are available for a wide variety of ages in the following areas:

- comprehensive diagnostic hearing services
- hearing aid fittings, repairs and accessories
- hearing rehabilitation
- hearing loss prevention and hearing protection
- counselling and communication training
- auditory processing disorders - diagnosis and management
- tinnitus management

As an independent clinic, clients requiring hearing aids are offered a choice of devices from a wide variety of manufacturers.

Educational seminars for parents, teachers and health professionals are also available on request.

Research findings are integrated into clinical practice through collaboration with academics to ensure clients receive the most effective services available. Clients are seen by either Audiologists or student Audiologists under supervision as part of the Master of Clinical Audiology program.
